Copy editing

Not all edits are created equal. Copy editing is the most minimal kind of edit. This looks surface-level issues like typos, grammar and punctuation issues, repetitive words, and frequently misused words. Turn around time is typically 3-4 weeks Cost: $0.035/word

Quantity: 1 $0

Line/content editing

Line or content editing covers everything that copyediting does, but we take it a step further and address awkward phrases or sentences; review transitions; word choice issues; redundancies and repetition; tense or pov shifts; inconsistencies with capitalization, spelling, numbering, etc.; fact-checking/cross-referencing as necessary; legal vetting; assisting with front and back matter (including appendices, bibliography, etc.); assistance with writing back cover text as needed; up to two iterations of edits; unlimited emails; up to two hours of phone calls. Typically takes 3-4 weeks for the first round of edits. Cost: $0.045/word

Developmental editing

Developmental edits cover line and copy edits, but also take a look at the overall organization, flow, pacing, setting, character, and goals of the book. Applicable to both fiction and non-fiction, this type of edit is the most intensive. Turn around is typically 4-6 weeks, depending on page count. Cost: $0.055/word. 30,000 word minimum.

Children's book editing

Children's book edits can take the form of copy, line, or developmental edits. Surface level issues and readability for the appropriate age group is the key for this type of edit. Issues in consistency and text placement are also looked at in the proofing stage of this edit, so an additional edit just before publication is included. Covers two iterations of edits and the proof edit. Additional hourly rates will be billed for additional proof revisions. Typical turn around time is 2 weeks for the initial edit. Cost: flat rate of $200 per book, with an additional hourly rate at $35 an hour for glossary creation or additional overtime.
